LIFETIME CONTRACT

DALLAS COWBOYS SUPER BOWL WAGER AGREEMENT

PARTY A | Josh Wieting

PARTY B | Nate Slonaker

EFFECTIVE DATE | 9/1/2026

Purpose. Josh Wieting and Nate Slonaker wish to continue their longstanding annual wager on whether the Dallas Cowboys will win the Super Bowl, under the clear and friendly terms below.

HISTORY AND MEMORIALIZATION

Josh Wieting and Nate Slonaker acknowledge that their annual $100 Dallas Cowboys Super Bowl wager began with the 2023 NFL season and has continued each season since.

Until this agreement, the wager operated under informal terms established through conversation, text messages, mutual understanding, friendship, and an arguably irresponsible degree of confidence in the Dallas Cowboys.

As of the effective date, Josh claims a 3–0 record. Nate officially notes that boasting about a 3–0 record is pretty easy when the math is 32-to-1 in your favor every single year. Nevertheless, displaying the relentless optimism of a true Cowboys fan, Nate remains confident that next year (or some year in the future) will be different.

This agreement memorializes the parties' existing tradition and establishes the official terms governing the wager for the current and future NFL seasons. It does not reopen, recalculate, or otherwise alter any prior completed wager, all of which are considered final and settled.

1. The Annual Wager

Each covered NFL season, Nate wagers that the Dallas Cowboys will win that season's Super Bowl. If Dallas does not win, Nate pays Josh the applicable annual stake. If Dallas wins, Josh pays Nate the applicable cash payout and any earned Cowboys Game Ticket Credit.

No money is deposited in advance. Under the standard terms, Nate's annual stake is $100. The dynasty-protection provisions may reduce both the stake and potential payout for a season immediately following a Cowboys championship.

2. Locking the Official Odds

The official line is the Caesars Sportsbook Las Vegas American odds for "Dallas Cowboys to Win the Super Bowl," recorded each September 1 at 12:00 p.m. Pacific Time, or as close to that time as reasonably possible.

One party will take a dated screenshot that clearly shows Dallas, the Super Bowl futures market, the American odds, Caesars Sportsbook, and the date and time when available. The screenshot will be sent by text, and both parties will confirm it in writing. Once confirmed, that line controls for the season.

Initial DS

If the market is temporarily unavailable at the designated time, the first Caesars line available that day will be used. If Caesars posts no applicable line on September 1, the parties will use the average of the same line from three mutually agreed major sportsbooks, rounded to the nearest +100 increment.

3. Standard Championship Payout

If Dallas wins the Super Bowl, the cash payout follows the locked American odds through +2500. The maximum standard cash payout is $2,500. Because the annual stake is not deposited in advance, no separate return of the stake is due.

Locked odds	Cash payout	Ticket credit
+1800	$1,800	None / Option
+2200	$2,200	None / Option
+2500	$2,500	None / Option
+3000	$2,500	$500
+3500	$2,500	$1,000
+4000 or longer	$2,500	$1,500 maximum

4. Cowboys Game Ticket Credit & Mandatory Championship Trip

If Dallas wins the Super Bowl, Josh is strictly required to attend one Dallas Cowboys regular season game during the immediately following NFL season. Playoff games are strictly excluded unless both parties mutually agree in writing. The venue, ticket credit, and apparel requirements depend on the locked September 1 odds:

- Standard Win (Odds +2500 or Shorter): The game may be any Dallas Cowboys regular season game (home at AT&T Stadium or away at any NFL stadium). Josh must choose one of the following options within 30 days of the Super Bowl victory:
    - Option A (Cash Credit): Josh pays a flat $500 Ticket Credit toward Nate's ticket. In this option, Josh is exempt from wearing Cowboys apparel at the game.

- Option B (The Jersey Opt-Out): Josh provides $0 Ticket Credit (both parties pay their own way for tickets), but Josh must wear a Dallas Cowboys jersey to the game.

- Longshot Win (Odds Longer than +2500): Venue flexibility is eliminated—the game MUST be a Dallas Cowboys regular season home game at AT&T Stadium in Arlington, Texas. Josh must provide the full calculated Ticket Credit (scaling above +2500, capped at $1,500) AND must attend the game wearing a Dallas Cowboys jersey.
- Jersey & Photo Rules: Whenever Josh wears a Cowboys jersey under Option B or a Longshot Win:
    - The apparel must be a stitched or printed football jersey (authentic, replica, or knockoff permitted; generic t-shirts or sweatshirts are strictly prohibited).
    - Josh may select any player or style at his own expense.
    - Josh agrees to pose for a commemorative photograph wearing the jersey at the stadium, and Josh must smile and look reasonably happy in the photograph.

The credit covers tickets, mandatory ticketing fees, and ticket taxes only. It excludes travel, lodging, parking, food, beverages, merchandise, insurance, and other expenses. Nate pays any ticket amount above the credit. The credit has no cash value, cannot be carried beyond the designated following season, and expires after Dallas's final game of that season.

5. Dynasty Protection

Dynasty protection applies whenever Dallas won the immediately preceding Super Bowl. During that season, Nate's stake is $50 and every calculated payout is reduced by 50%. The maximum cash payout is $1,250 and the maximum ticket credit is $750.

Locked odds	Protected cash payout	Protected ticket credit
+2000	$1,000	None
+2500	$1,250	None
+3000	$1,250	$250
+4000 or longer	$1,250	$750 maximum

- Mandatory Attendance Exemption: If Dynasty Protection is active (meaning Dallas won the Super Bowl in the back-to-back immediately preceding season), Josh is exempt from any mandatory game attendance and jersey requirements under Section 4.

Initial

DS

- Ticket Credit Conversion: If earned under the protected odds table above, Josh remains obligated to provide the reduced ticket credit (capped at $750) toward Nate's ticket, but Josh is not required to travel or attend the game in person.

Dynasty protection remains in effect for every season following a consecutive Cowboys championship. After one full NFL season without a Cowboys Super Bowl victory, the following season resets to the standard $100 stake, full payout scale, $2,500 cash cap, and $1,500 ticket-credit cap.

6. Settlement Deadline

All cash payments are due no later than seven business days after Dallas plays its final game of the applicable NFL season. "Business day" means Monday through Friday, excluding United States federal holidays.

If Dallas misses the playoffs, Nate pays after the final regular-season game. If Dallas is eliminated in the playoffs, Nate pays after the playoff loss. If Dallas wins the Super Bowl, Josh pays after the Super Bowl. The ticket credit is handled separately after the following season's schedule and tickets become available.

7. Cancelled or Materially Altered Season

If the NFL season or Super Bowl is cancelled, abandoned, or not completed—or if Caesars would grade the corresponding futures wager as void—the annual wager is void. Neither party owes payment, and no ticket credit is earned. A postponed, shortened, or rescheduled season is not cancelled if the NFL ultimately recognizes a Super Bowl champion.

If the Cowboys relocate, materially change identity, cease operations, or are no longer reasonably identifiable as the same NFL franchise, this agreement pauses until both parties decide in writing whether and how it will continue.

8. Duration and Termination

This agreement continues for future NFL seasons unless both parties agree in writing to terminate or replace it. Neither party may withdraw unilaterally.

A party requesting termination is the Cancelling Party. Termination becomes effective only when the other party accepts in writing. The Cancelling Party must pay the other party a $500 termination fee within seven business days after acceptance.

If both parties jointly initiate termination, they may waive or allocate the fee in their written termination agreement. Unless they expressly agree otherwise, no fee is due when termination is genuinely joint.

Termination applies to future wagers only. If the September 1 line has already been recorded and confirmed, that season remains active. The $500 fee is separate from any amount owed for that final season.

9. If the Agreement Ends Because of Death

Initial

DS

This agreement ends automatically if either party dies, and no termination fee is due. If the season is still unresolved, that season is void. If Dallas's final game has already been played and the cash result is known, the amount remains payable to or by the appropriate estate or designated family recipient. Any unused ticket credit expires because the trip is intended to be shared by Josh and Nate.

10. The Friendship Rule

This is a friendly, honor-system agreement. Disagreements will first be handled through good-faith conversation. If needed, Josh and Nate will jointly select a neutral friend to make the final call. Neither party will use attorneys, collection agencies, liens, lawsuits, or threats to enforce the wager. The friendship always matters more than the wager.

11. Decennial CPI Adjustment and Complete Understanding

Beginning September 1, 2036, and every ten (10) years thereafter, the standard annual stake ($100), maximum cash payout ($2,500), Option A ticket credit ($500), ticket credit caps, and Dynasty Protection thresholds shall automatically adjust to reflect the cumulative change in the U.S. Consumer Price Index (CPI-U) over the preceding decade. Adjusted values shall be rounded to the nearest $10 increment for annual stakes and $100 increment for payouts and credits.

Any other changes must be approved by both parties in writing, including by signed document, email, or a text exchange showing agreement to the same terms. This document replaces prior informal rules wherever they conflict, while preserving longstanding customs that do not conflict with these written terms.

12. The Philadelphia Eagles Rivalry Provision

In the spirit of fair competition and divisional rivalry, if the Philadelphia Eagles win the Super Bowl during any covered season under this Agreement, Nate shall purchase one (1) ticket for Josh to attend any Philadelphia Eagles regular season game (home or away) during the immediately following NFL season.

- Ticket Quality & Value: The ticket shall be in a reasonably prime, mid-tier seat (lower bowl or lower-tier 200s; upper-deck nosebleeds strictly excluded), capped at a maximum value of $300.
- Venue Flexibility: Josh may select an Eagles home game or an Eagles away game at any NFL stadium (such as a West Coast road game against Seattle or San Francisco to minimize travel and logistics costs for both parties).
- No Apparel or Attendance Requirement: Josh is not required to wear specific apparel, and Nate is not required to attend the game, though Nate retains the option to purchase his own ticket to attend alongside Josh at his own expense.
- Exclusivity: This provision applies solely to a Philadelphia Eagles Super Bowl victory and does not alter or affect the standard annual wager, stakes, payouts, or ticket credits for the Dallas Cowboys.

13. The Last Laugh Provision

If Nate Slonaker dies before Josh Wieting, and the Dallas Cowboys have not won a Super Bowl during the period beginning on the effective date of this agreement and ending on the date of

Initial DS

Nate's death, Josh shall earn the ceremonial right to have the final word under the following conditions:

The Statement: With the prior consent of Nate's immediate family, Josh may make a brief statement at an appropriate memorial, celebration of life, private gathering, or other mutually suitable occasion. The statement may include Josh's good-natured declaration that:

- Josh was right;
- Nate was wrong; and
- The Dallas Cowboys did, in fact, suck.

Family Discretion: Josh's statement must remain affectionate, respectful, and reasonably brief. It should honor the friendship and the longstanding wager rather than disrupt or diminish the gathering. Nate's immediate family retains complete discretion regarding whether the statement may be made, when it may be made, and the setting in which it may be delivered. If the family does not consent, Josh may not make the statement at a memorial or family gathering, but he shall retain eternal private bragging rights.

The Slonaker Legacy Trip: As part of honoring Nate's memory and celebrating his life, an allocation will be made in Nate's Will to fully fund a commemorative trip for Josh Wieting, Derek Wieting, and Trevor Campbell to attend a live Dallas Cowboys vs. Philadelphia Eagles game together at any point in the future, pending schedule availability.

Estate Coverage: The estate will pay 100% of all travel, lodging, game ticket, and jersey expenses for all three individuals.

Mandatory Jersey Condition: To unlock full estate payout for the trip, Josh, Derek, and Trevor must each attend the game wearing a Dallas Cowboys jersey. Each individual may select their preferred jersey number, but the name on the back of all three jerseys must strictly read "SLONAKER".

Championship Expiration: This entire provision expires immediately if the Dallas Cowboys win a Super Bowl during Nate's lifetime.
